

We took the decision as the COVID 19 pandemic approached to bolster the welfare of our team by improving our standards in the area of health and safety management. This was by putting ourselves forward for ISO 45001 2018. We knew, as the pandemic approached, that we were going to continue to supply our products throughout to critical infrastructure Fuel Delivery companies as well as the Fire and Rescue Services. This has been led by our Compliance Director, Karen Hull, who has managed us through this improvement process.

The key benefit this has delivered to us is improved employee safety and welfare in these difficult times as well as...

- Reduced workplace illnesses and injuries
- Increased employee confidence
- Increased productivity
- Culture of improvement
- Reduced risk and accidents
- Identify opportunities
- Potentially lower insurance costs
- Increased health and safety awareness
- Stand out as an industry leader...

Much of the work was done remotely as all staff able to work from home had been doing so prior to the lockdown starting. This created a few challenges which were met with creativity and enthusiasm! The two stage process to gain accreditation has been fully completed in these challenging times.

We engaged in some virtual audits with NQA which we are pleased to say that we have passed with flying colours.

We are delighted to have received this accreditation and have further improved our processes and procedures to a higher standard to ensure our employee well-being.

Watch this space as we have decided that we will continue on this improvement road with further work to maximise the few opportunities that COVID 19 has presented to us.
